ESCAPED THE TRAP.

Just by a Narrow Margin Did the Speculator Fail to Buy the Farm.

New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The hotel lobbies are full of oil stories nowadays, and some remarkable tales of various strikes are being told by the old timers. Here is one of the latest, of slightly different variety:

"Some years ago," says the narrator, "an oil boom hit Litchfield, Ill., and everybody for miles around was seen sniffing for oil, and every stranger was suspected of being an expert looking for a good thing. An old farmer named Loomis had a big place three miles out of town, which would have been a fortune for him had he not been possessed by a mania for swapping, manifest in a perennial attempt to trade off his land for twice its value. When the boom was at the top notch, Loomis received a visitor who took so much interest in the farm, so liked its appearance, location, etc., that the old farmer scented a petroleum man and visions of incalculable wealth. But, being a shrewd man, Loomis did not care to take any unnecessary chances with Providence, and on the quiet he sent the hired man out the back way with orders to dump the kerosene can into the well.

"The visitor liked the entire place, inspected the barn, the chicken yard, and then, if by chance, asked for a drink of water. Loomis was waiting for that and hauled up a brimming bucket before the man's own eyes and poured him out a gourd full of liquor with a fine opalescent scum upon it. The visitor smelled of the stuff, tasted it, made a wry face and asked if the water was always like that. 'Oh, yes,' said Loomis, 'but you soon get accustomed to the taste, and our doctor says this is the finest water on earth for the stomach .'

"'Well I am ding-danged if I'll ever get used to it,' was the unexpected response. 'I am looking for a farm, not an oil well, and if I have got to haul my drinking water three miles from Litchfield, I guess I'd rather buy nearer town.' It took Loomis six months to get the taste of the oil out of his well, and by that time the boom was over and nothing was left of the oil craze but rotting dericks and abandoned shafts."

BOUNDARY LINE MOVED.

Valuable Mining Land Shoved Over Into Canada.

Vancouver, B. C., June 7.—Trouble occurred this morning at the international boundary line in the Mount Baker mining district, and, as a result, American owners of mines who are suffering are protesting to the Canadian government authorities.

On Wednesday the American government boundary line surveyor, Mr. Sinclair, finished determining the line in this district and found that it was 3,840 feet farther south than it was suposed to have been for the last three years.

Two thousand feet of two of the most valuable mines in the district, the Golden Chariot and Golden Star, owned by Seattle and New York people, were shoved over into Canada.

Canadians, this morning, jumped all this ground, which has not been staked according to Canadian regulations and was not recorded on this side of the line. At noon at appeal was wired to the authorities at Ottawa by the American owners. The claim jumpers were stil busy, acording to advices received late this afternoon, some of the claims running very rich.

J. E. McManus, of Seattle, was interested in a valuable claim of jumped ground.

Dr. and Mrs. Grissom Return.

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Grissom returned Saturday night from Baltimore, where for some time Mrs. Grisom has been recuperating. From Baltimore they went to Darien, Conn., to visit relatives. Mrs. Grissom's health has been very much improved by her trip. While gone they had intended to take in the Pan-Amercian Exposition, but as the exposition is not yet running smoothly, they decided to wait and go later in the summer.

CANNONADING HAIL STORMS.

SECRETARY WILSON DOES NOT BELIEVE IN IT.

He Ridicules the Ideas of the Uneducated Peasantry of Europe and Warns Our People Against Turning Fools.

Washington, June .—The extentsive reports of United States Consul Covert, at Lyons, France, relative to the success of cannon firing in France, as a means of protecting orchards and vineyards from hail storms, and also for the prupose of mitigating or nullifying the effects of frosts upon vegetation, have prompted numerous inquiries by horticulturists in this country as to when, if at all, our government would adopt similar methods of protection. Prof. Willis L. Moore, the chief of the Weather Bureau, acting under the direction of Secretary Wilson, has issued the press the following statement:

"After an examination of all that has been published during the past two years, my conviction is that we have here to do with a popular delusion as remarkable as it is the belief in the effect of the moon on the weather. The uneducated peasantry of Europe seem to be looking for something miraculous. They would rather believe in cannonading as a means of protection and spend on it abundance of money. time and labor that adopt the very simple expedient of mutual insurance against the losses that must enevitably occur. The great processes going on in the atmosphere are conducted on too large a scale to warrant any man or nation in attempting to control them. The energy expended by nature in the production of a hail storm, a tornado or a rain storm. exceeds the conmbined energy of all the steam engines and explosives in the world. It is useless for mankind to combat nature on this scale.

"After the experience that this country has had during the past ten years with rain makers, I am loth to believe that the bonbardment of hail storms ever will be practiced or even attempted by the United States, much less encouraged by the intelligent portion of the community. Every effort should be made to counteract the spread of the Italian delusion which has been imported into this country by Consul Covert."

Mr. Baldwin Tries a Balloon.

St. Louis, Mo., June 7.—Evelyn B. Baldwin, the Arctic explorer, arrived here last night from Quincy, Ill., having made the trip by balloon and rail. Yesterday he made an ascension on a gas balloon, accompanied by his cousin, Samuel Baldwin of Princeton, Ill. This was his first attempt at aerial navigation.

Believeing that a balloon would be a useful adjunct in his proposed search for the pole, he made his test ascension on Thursday. The big gas bag sailed southwest from Quincy about twenty-four miles, and landed two and a half miles southwest of Richfield, Ill. Here the aeronauts secured a wagon and were driven across country twelve miles to catch a Wabash train from Hannibal, whence they came to this city. Speaking of the ascension Mr. Baldwin said:

"We ascended in the Mars at noon from Quincey, and started southwest. The Mars maintained an elevation of about two miles until we descended near Richfield."

Bernhardt and Maude Adams.

London—Sarah Bernhardt will play Romeo for 100 nights in America to Maud Adams' Juliet. This was arranged last evening at a supper given by Sarah Bernhardt to Charles Frohman, at which Maurice Grau, her manager, was also present. Mme. Bernhardt will play in English, and after the American tour the two actresses will appear here on the zb zgfi gfigfigfigfi appear here and on the continent.

Mme Bernhardt has taken Mr. Frohman's prompt copy in manuscript and will study the role in English during the summer. It is the desire of both managers to have Mme Bernhardt appear as Romeo, following her coming production of "Theodora" at the Saran Bernhardt Theatre in Paris.

The baggage-smasher now begins to get in his fine work.

Spiders and Bad Whiskey.

Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"Fifteen-year-old whiskey made in 15 minutes was one of the things that was discovered by the United States Agricultural Department when it went to assemble the exhibit of American liquors for the Paris Exposition.

When one stops to consider how simply the aging process can be accomplished, and how many hundred per cent. it adds to the selling price of what would otherwise be a very cheap liquor, it is not at all surprising that the trick is resorted to and that its devotees flourish.

The small black spider which haunts the tenement rafters and delights in taking possession of the window in abandoned stores is the chief medium in the aging process. The working spiders are not picked up by chance, but are saved from day to day and week to week and fed with care and system . The cobweb makers have discovered that, lacking a sufficient supply of freshly killed flies, the spiders will thrive equally well on a gelatinous mixture of meat-jelly, thickened with a little sugar.

The first step in the operation of aging a bottle of fresh wine is to secure an appropriate antique label. They are printed on a tiny handpress kept especially for this purpose, and the aging establishment has a collection of blocks to stimulate a dozen different labels, some of them clever forgeries of the older well known brands.

The labels are printed in cheap ink, that will not stand too well, anyhow, but the artists do not trust to this alone, for a basket of 1756 port may have to come to the table in forty-eight hours after it has received its cobweb draperires. Consequently the lables are all dipped in a small bowl of the weak tobacco water and dried on a line over the stove.

The mellow suggestion of age given by this expedient is surprisingly deceptive when one considers the simplicity of the operation.

The labels are pasted and the bottle is ready for the finishing touches. This consists in dipping them in a bucket of water and allowing them to drain without wiping. Before they are quite dry they are dusted very lightly with a mixture of wood ashes and very fine sawdust. The result is that the damp bottle catches and holds a light film, such as it would acpuire only by years of cellar life.

The final act is performed by the spiders. The bottles are placed in a narrow basket and two of three energetic spiders put in with them. The dusty surface of the bottle offers an excellent inducement for them to work and it usually takes the most artistic suggestion of cobwebbed age.

The fifteen-year-old whisky referred to was a discovery of Professor Wiley, of the Agricultural Department, as has been said, when he was collecting the liquors for the American exhibit at Paris. It developed that about nine-tenths of the whiskey sold over the bars of the country had never seen a distillery, but was what was known to the trade as synthetic whisky: that is to say, whisky made up of high proof spirits, with a sufficient quantity of water, coloring and flavoring matter to give it the appearance of having been naturally aged.

The alcohol is furnished by high-proof spirits, generally known as high wines. The color is obtained by the addition of caramel, prune juice or some similar agent, while a very small addition of glycerine gives the "head" that is one of the first signs that an amateur expert looks for as he tips his glass up an angle and watches the suspicion of oiliness where the liquor clings to the side.

Bank Teller Flim-Flammed.

New York Sun.

Chas. G. Soloyn, paying teller of the Union Dime Savings Bank at Broadway and Thirty-second street,was flimflammed to the extent of $55 on Thursday. About 11:30 o'clock on that day a man presented a $1000 bill and a $50 bill at the paying teller's window and asked that they be exchanged for bills of a lower denomination. Solyon gave him thirty $5 bills. The man stepped aside to count the bills and then wrapped them in a sheet of paper. Then he decided that he wanted still smaller bills and Soloyn counted out $150 in ones and twos. The man left the bank with the money as quickly as possible. Half an hour later Solyon found that the package of bills the man had returned to him was $55 short.

He caused the arrest of John Myers, a waiter, of 110 West Thirty-third street, later. Myers was walking up Sixth avenue and Policeman Deyo arrested him on Solyon's complaint. In Jefferson Market police court yesterday Magistrate Brann held Myers for examination on Monday. The prisoner earnestly asserted his innocence and was confident he could prove an alibi.

CHAMOIS AS COASTERS.

Animals in the Alps Enjoy a Swift Slide Down the Steep Mountain Side.

Nearly all animals are fond of play, and sometimes their play is almost a systematic game. If you should come across a lot of goats playing football, with chosen sides, captains and all that sort of thing, you would be speechless with amazement, and yet a tourist saw something on the Alps that is scarcely less astonishing, says the New York Herald.

It was in summer, and a flock of chamois had climbed up to where the snow never melts, evidently to play on it. Their movements were so peculiar that he watched them carefully. They had found a steep, snow covered incline, to the upper end of which they went in a body, just like a party of boys intent on coasting.

And that is precisely what the chamois intended, for two or three of them at a time would crouch down at the beginning of the descent, work all four legs to get a start, and slide over the surface of the snow to the bottom. When they reached the bottom they would rise, shake themselves and climb up the incline again, only to repeat their trip down. This they did time and again, their comrades at the upper end watching them with great interest until it came their turn to coast.

The coasting ground was about 150 yards from top to bottom, and the chamois would shoot down it with the speed of sleds, the snow rising about them in a powdery cloud.

There could be no doubt whatever that they did it for sport, and they seemed to enjoy it as much as boys enjoy coasting down a well-packed hill.

WOMAN'S HEAD FOR BUSINESS

A Couple Who Were Consulted by Their Friends, Both Men and Women.

A woman told the other day that she never went to a man for business advice. "No," she said, "it may seem strange, but I always consult a woman friend. She has about the longest head you ever saw, and, though she lives quietly at home, she is splendidly posted and her judgment infallible."

There are others. There was one woman living in the country near the city whose advice was sought by all the farmers around her, says the Louisville Times. She was a woman's rights advocate, masculine in her nature, kindly, though, and generous and exceedingly shrewd. Whoever got ahead of her in a business deal had to rise early or sit up all night. But the men around called on her constantly for information. They consulted her as to planting their crops, about suitable soils for certain seeds, about the management of stock and the culture of flowers. She ran her own farm and was a noted housekeeper, but it is said the wives of men around her did not take kindly to their husbands' confidence in and admiration for her. We all know the sternest enemy of suffrage is a woman, and then, too, when hubby praises a woman he is doing a foolish thing and is dead sure to prejudice his own home bloomers against her.

THIEF CAUGHT BY TURTLES.

The Snappers Grabbed the Man's Hand and Held Him a Close Prisoner.

The pickpocket who tried to "pinch" a likely looking man's pocketbook and found his fingers in the grasp of two snapping turtles was a Japanese. A native traveler in Japan had bought the turtles, and, being afraid that he would be charged heavily for their transportation as live animals on the train, he placed them in a small portable trunk which he carried. When he got on the train he held the trunk so carefully under his arm that a thief who was in the crowd was sure the man had something valuable in the box. So he got into the same car and took an adjoining seat. Taking the first opportunity, he cut a small hole in the trunk with a sharp knife and slipped in his hand.

About this time the turtles concluded that there was "something doing" and they took hold of his fingers in a hearty way. Gritting his teeth, the thief tried to withdraw his hand, but he couldn't. Then he howled and the owner of the trunk seized him and turned him over to the train people, who at the next station gave him to a policeman. The incident, however, wasn't closed until the traveler was punished for violation of the railway regulations.

Cannon as a Teacher of Science.

M. Maurice Levy, the president of the French Academy of Sciences, remarked in a recent address that the cannon is one of the most instructive laboratories that science possesses. It was the modern cannon, he said, which suggested the application of explosive gases to the driving of engines. The experience of the immense pressures obtained in cannon also led to the use of pressures in steam machines, which a few years ago would have been regarded as impracticable. Thus experiments intended primarily for the purposes of war had resulted in the advance of the triumphs of peace.

CATARRH

A Constitutional Affection.

Sprays, washes, powders, salves, medicated tobacco and cigarettes, however long and persistently used, do not cure Catarrh. They relieve temporarily the inflammation in the throat and nose, and enable you to breathe more easily and freely, but the continual rush of impure blood to these parts keeps up the irritation and ultimately produces ulceration of the glands, when the breath becomes exceedingly offensive and the soft bones of the nose are frequently destroyed. The catarrhal inflammation extends over the entire surface of the mucous membrane, or inner skin; the stomach, kidneys and lungs are often involved; the whole system soon becomes affected by the rapid absorption of poisonous matter into the blood, and the disease that you had hoped to cure with simple local remedies, assumes a dangerous form.

I had Catarrh about 15 years, and tried during the time everything I could hear of, but nothing did me any good. At last I came to the conclusion that Catarrh must be a blood disease, and decided to give S. S. S. a trial. I could see a little improvement from the first bottle, and continued it three or four months, or until I was cured. Have not taken anything for six years, and am just as well as I ever was.—M. MATSON, Lapeer, Mich.

I had Catarrh so bad was entirely deaf in one ear, and all the inside of my nose and part of the bone sloughed off. The physicians gave me up as incurable. I determined to try S. S. S., and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the seat of the disease, and after a few weeks' treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than seven years have had no sign of the disease.—MRS. JOSEPHINE POLHILL, Due West, S. C.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease—a blood disease which is frequently inherited, and only a blood medicine, such as S. S. S., can remove the hereditary taint, destroy the poisons that have been accumulating in the system for years perhaps, and restore the blood to a healthy and pure condition. The inflamed membranes and diseased glands are healed by the rich, pure blood which is carried to them, and the offensive discharges from the nose, and the terrible headache and neuralgic pains cease. Chronic cases of the most desperate character and apparently hopeless, have been cured completely and permanently by the use of S. S. S.

Write our physicians fully about your case and they will cheerfully assist you by their advice. We charge nothing whatever for this service. Book free on application. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

ON THE WING.

Hawks have been seen to follow the wake of a moving railway train, to swoop down on small birds that were suddenly disturbed and frightened by the noise, and therefore for the moment were off their guard.

The ostrich has long been laughed at for pushing his head into a bush when hunted. It is really far the wisest thing the bird could do, for its long neck is by far the most easily seen part of it. Its body plumage harmonizes perfectly with the desert sand.

The carrier pigeon when traveling never feeds. If the distance be long, it flies on without stopping to take nutriment, and at last arrives, thin, exhausted and almost dying. If corn be presented to it it refuses to eat, contenting itself with drinking a little water and then sleeping. Two or three hours later it begins to eat with great moderation and sleeps again immediately afterwards. If its flight has been very prolonged, the pigeon will proceed in this manner for 48 hours before recovering its normal mode of feeding.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

WINE OF CARDUI

THE LINK THAT BINDS.

JACKSON, TENN., Nov. 23.

I was subject to miscarriage for three years, and suffered constantly with backache. I wrote to you for advice, and after using three bottles of Wine of Cardui, according to your directions, I am strong and well, and the mother of a fine girl baby.

Mrs. E. N. JOWERS.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

There is no use talking—a baby in the house is the link that binds husband and wife together. Nothing is sadder than fruitless wedlock. The prattling and cooing of the little ones offset a thousand times the occasional worries and trials of life. When a wife is barren, there is a derangement somewhere in the genital organs, caused by one or more of those common disorders known as "female troubles". Wine of Cardui is the remedy. It puts the organs of generation in a strong and healthy condition, fitting the wife for the sacred duty of reproducing her kind. During the period of gestation the entire system of the expectant mother is built up to withstand the ordeal of labor, and when the little one makes its advent it is lusty and strong, well-fitted to grow to maturity in perfect health. The mother, too, passes through the trial with little pain and no dread. Wine of Cardui is truly a wonderful medicine for women.

MONDAY, JUNE 10.

THE COSTLIEST HUMBUG.

A reader of the morning papers might have noticed the following press dispatch from Baltimore:

Miss Maud Knight, sister of Mr. Albert C. Knight, who resides at 808 North Monroe street, died at her brother's residence this morning. Miss Knight was a believer in Christian Science, and was engaged in the work of healing the sick by faith and prayer, when she was herself stricken down about six weeks ago. At this time she was helping Mr. Knight's wife nurse a very sick child.

Mrs. Knight was prevailed upon by her sister-in-law not to call in a physician, but to permit her to treat the child according to the methods of Christian Science. The child gradually grew worse.

The gentleman at whose house she boarded, when he learned that Miss Knight had not had the attention of a physician in her sickness, believing that if she should die in his house without a doctor the responsibility would rest upon him, called the matter to the attention of Health Commissioner Bosley.

Dr. Holsbrook, who was summoned to attend Miss Knight, after diagnosing her case, gave the opinion that she had small chance of recovery, and a subsequent consultation of three doctors concurred in this view.

She suffered from a serious disorder of the stomach, which had caused softening of the brain, and resulted in her death this morning.

Not only is Christian Science costly in the lives which are sacrificed to the delusion, but its value to the leaders is very great, because they give it to their followers at pretty stiff prices. Mrs. Mary Boker Humbug Eddy is already a millionaire. One of her followers who called down her wrath in a libelous letter, brought suit against Mrs. Eddy for damages in the sum of $150,000 and against her associates for sums aggregating $200,000. The suits against the scientists were lost, but in the course of the trial some very interesting information was brought out. It seems that Mrs. Woodbury, the woman who brought the suit, was also a leading scientist, but fell out with Mrs. Eddy about something whereupon the latter wrote the insulting letter and libelous article complained of. The testimony is interesting because it shows the light in which her followers regard Mrs. Eddy. This examination of Mrs. Woodbury was made:

"What is the universal belief of Christian Scientists about Mrs. Eddy?"

"That she is infallible: that "Science and Health is infallible.'

"What other belief about Mrs. Eddy?

"That she is to Christian Science what Jesus Christ was to Christianity, that she was especially selected by God."

"Anything else?"

"There is a belief that she is the woman in Revelations with a crown of stars on her head, one foot on earth, she being in a position to bring the light that will supersede Christianity.

From this it appears that the scientists consder their doctrine a supplement to Christianity, something like Joseph Smith believed the teaching of his invention which he called the Book of Mormon and claimed to have found written on golden tablets hidden in the ground in New York State. The Mrs. Eddy Humbug is the biggest and cotliest, to its followers, and most profitable to its inventors that has come down the way.

PRISONER 25 YEARS.

Sad Fate of a Beautiful French Brunette.

Paris, June 8.—The sensation of the week has been the arrest of Madam Monnier, a rich, miserly, land-owner of the neighborhood of Poiters, and her son, a former prefect of the Department of Vienna and a leader of Poitier's society, on the charge of incarcerating Mlle Glanche Monnier, daughter of Madame Monnier, for 25 years, in a room of Madme Monnier's house. The police who were annonymously notified of the woman's detention, entered the house and found Mlle Monnier shut up a room, in darkness, lying on a mattress, stark naked, and so emaciated that she appeared to be a living skeleton. The room was covered with filth, bones, refuse food, worms, rats and all kinds of vermin. The unfortunate woman, who had partially lost her reason, was taken to a hospital. It was thought she would die, but she is now improving. Twenty-five years ago she was a beautiful brunette and fell in love with a lawyer without means. Her mother disapproved of their love and confined her in the room which she had only recently left.The son, after his arrest, pleaded that he acted as he did on account of filial piety and that the mohter was responsible. The lawyer died in 1885.

There was another dramatic development in the case, today. Madame Monnier died in prison of heart disease. The gravity of her crime was brought home to her at the judge's examination Thursday. She became ill and died suddenly in the infirmary of the prison this morning.

BATTLE OVER A HOG.

Two Men Killed and Two Badly Wounded—A Bloody Fight in Houston.

Houston, Tex., June 7.—As a result of an indictment charging hog theft, a shooting affray occurred here today in which Thomas Payne and L. D. Echols were killed, J. B. Perkins was fatally, and Dave Echols badly wounded. Payne's son was on trial and the Echols had been summoned as witnesses. They met down town and after a few words the shooting began. Perkins was a brother-in-law of Payne, and he and Echols fired at about the same time. Echols' bullet struck Payne and in the same seconds Perkins' shot killed Echols.

Dave Echols opened fire on Perkins and on young Payne. Two bullets struck Perkins, and a wound in the groin will probably prove fatal. Perkins wounded Dave Echols in the arm and amputation will be necessary. The younger Payne was not hit. The street was crowded at the time of the shooting, but no one save those directly involved were hurt. Every bullet fired struck the mark, with the exception of one which young Payne fired and which struck his father, though he was probably dead at the time.

THE END NOW DRAWING NEAR.

SPEECHES BY ATTORNEYS IN GOLD BRICK CASE MADE TODAY.

Mr. Gilmore Makes Good Talk on Bad Case—Solicitor Brooks Makes an Able Speech—How the Prisoners Look.

The closing hours of the gold brick trial are fast drawing near. The morning session of the court today was devoted, until about twelve o'clock, to the speech of Mr. Gilmore, of Chicago, counsel for the defense. He spoke at length of the whole transaction, endeavoring to show that his clients had only done what they had a perfect right to do. He paid his respects to the court, and to the counsel for the prosecution, saying that he knew that they only wanted justice done.

He was followed by Solicitor Brooks who presented the side of the prosecution in an able speech of about an hour and a half. This afternoon the counsel for the defence closed the argument with a speeech by Col. J. A. Barringer.

Mr. Gilmore made a good speech for his case, but he had a bad case. The demeanor of the prisoners while he was speaking was interesting to an onlooker. The old miner sat listening with somewhat nonchlant air, as though the result was of no moment to him. The assayer was decidedly nervous, as was the erstwhile Indian. The strain is beginning to tell on all three, but to a less marked degree on the old miner than the other two.

A section of the court house was reserved this morning for the ladies, and they filled it completely. This was the largest attendance of the ladies of any day of the trial. At the conclusion of Mr. Gilmore's speech the Judge allowed the jury to go out of the jury box for a few minutes to rest themselves and this thoughtfulness on the part of the presiding officer was seemingly much appreciated by them.

At 4:30 this afternoon the judge began the delivery of his charge to the jury. The charge will probably not be so lengthly as some of the speeches an dthere is probability that the jury will render a verdict tonight.

THE UNLOADED GUN AGAIN.

Dr. Fox's Son Plays With One—It Shoots But no One is Hurt

The old story of the small boy, the unloaded gun, and the resultant discharge of the said unloaded gun, occurred yesterday afternoon at the home of Dr. Fox, at Guilford College, the only variation of the story this time, consisting in the fact that nobody got killed. Master Thomas, the 12-year-old son of Dr. Fox, was showing a boy companion his father's gun, and saying that it was unloaded, he cocked and snapped it, when the thing went off, shooting a hole in the side of the wall. The boys were terribly frightened, and so was Mrs. Fox who was sitting on the porch.

The mother when she heard the report of the gun was sure that one of the boys had been killed, and of course her nerves suffered a severe shock.

CAN'T PLAY A LITTLE BIT.

The Judgement Passed Upon the Elks' Ball Team by Their Opponents.

The ball game at the Park Saturday afternoon between the Elks team and the team from the Southern Railway was a great game. This morning a dilligent search for an Elk who played on the team of that organization was instituted, but at a late hour this afternoon, no one could be found who would admit that he played. The score stood 23 to 3 in favor of the Railway boys. The victorious team say that the Elks can't play ball a little bit.

MR. O. WILLIAMS ROBBED.

Thief Takes His Valuable Jewelry, Among Other Things an Engagement Ring.

Mr. O. Williams, who lives on Gorrell street was several days ago robbed of numerous articles of jewelry, among them being an engagement ring and several other things that were prized more for association' sake than for their mere intrinsic value. So far no arrests have been made. At the time the robbery was discovered it was thought best to have no public mention made of the fact. A number of robberies have occurred in the city recently, and if they are not stopped some one will likely get a load of shot in his skin.

THE SHIRT WAIST MAN

The shirt waist man is here at last. His coming has been threatened but no one has seemingly regarded his advent with seriousness. Saturday afternoon Carrier Lewis, of the postoffice force, had on one of the genuine garments, and seemingly enjoyed the sensation of coolness it produced. Today Mr. Tom McLean, of the Vanstory Clothing Company, is wearing a white one. He is very proud of it, and likes for everybody to feel its quality.

A Boer Minister in New York.

New York, June 9.—The Rev. H. D. Von Brockhuisen, of Pretoria, South Africa, the minister who closed the Volksraad with prayer after President Kruger's ultimatum had been read to that body, is in the city. His brother Dr. H. J. Von Brockhuisen, of the Orange Free State, who served in the Boer armies, accompanied him. Their mission in this country is to raise money for the Boer women and children now in the refuge camps. Rev. Dr. Von Brockhuisen said in an interview:

"Our women and children who are at present concentrated in camps established by the British, are in a horrible condition. It was bad enough when I left South Africa, but I know from letters that I have received—one only the other day from my sister—that it is a hundred times worse now."

When the doctor left South Africa, he says, he was virtually banished by order of General Maxwell, military governor of Pretoria. Dr. Von Brockhuisen said further of the camps:

"In an official report made by Dr. Ronald P. McKenzie, of the British army, on February 18th, of this year, the Britsh government is notified that the conditions are horrible, the death rate apalling and the food furnished wholly unfit to eat."

The Afrikanders, Rev. D. Brockhuisen avers, will never be overcome, and all reports to the contrary are false. The Boer army numbers 15,000 to 17,000 and is constantly being augmented by Cape Colony Boers. The Boer forces are now armed with Lee-Metford rifles, he says, and they have tons of amunition buried which they can use at any time against the British.

WANTS TO KEEP THE TREES.

A PETITION BEING CIRCULATED TO THAT END.

The Shade Trees of the City a Possession it Should be Proud of—Comparison of Winston-Salem.

A petition is being circulated today addressed to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the city of Greensboro, asking that the trees on West Market street be not cut down. The gentlemen who have the petition say that steps have been taken to have the trees cut down in order to make way for the proposed street car line. A number of signatures have been secured, and the petition will probably be presented to the Board at their next meeting, which will be on Friday night.

One gentleman who is largely interested in the growth and development of the city, in speaking of the proposed action of cutting down the trees, said that the one thing of which Greensboro was the possessor, that she should be proud of is her beautiful trees. Cut them down and the city is no longer beautiful.

The truth of this statement can be found within a few miles of this city. The twin cities of Winston-Salem stand as living monuments, one to the policy of tree cutting, and the other to the policy of tree preserving. No comment on the two cities is necesary, for any one who has ever been there cannot fail to have been impressed by the beauty of the one, and the bleakness of the other.

As regards the car line, the trees need make no difference. The twin cities again furnish an example. The same car line there travels the same street through both cities. In the one it passes under trees, and in the other there are no trees for it to pass under. Let us keep the trees.

CAUGHT A BLIND TIGER.

Chief Scott Takes a Walk in Duplin and Finds Something.

Chief Scott visited the eastern part of the city yesterday, and during the course of his rambles, stopped at the house of one, John Wharton, who in times past has been known to relieve the wants of the thirsty in a manner contrary to that prescribed by law. When the chief walked in, he beheld a three gallon jug sitting on the floor, and further along an empty crate, which had once contained a full quota of beer. About a dozen bottles was all that then remained of the crate full. The jug contained about two gallons of what is known as "Kill me Quick," and this together with the beer, was captured by the Chief.

Another negro, Shadrach Jones, by name, who was hanging about the place, was told to carry the jug up town, and the chief brought up the rear with the beer. After reaching his office Mr. Scott began quizzing the darkey, and in the course of the talk, the negro gave himself away and was promptly locked up. He will probably get a term on the roads for his complicity in the matter. The old negro Wharton is a cripple, and cannot walk without the aid of crutches, and there is nothing that can be done with him, but to break up his business.

NORTH CAROLINA'S GREAT MUSEUM.

F. A. Olds in the Sunny South.

North Carolina's great show place is its state museum. It is the supreme attraction at the capitol, and it has 75,000 visitors a year. That tells in a few words the story of its popularity and of the the success which necessarly follows popularity. In all the south the museum is unique and unapproached. No matter from which state visitors come they are impressed by it. It is practical and yet by the excellence of its arrangement shows the grace there is in practical things, provided there is taste in their installation. Hon. O. B. Stevens, Georgia's commissioner of agriculture, after having seen the museum last year, expressed unbounded surprise at this extensive and altogether admirable way of illustrating the state's resources and deplored the fact that Georgia had no such museum.

The first museum the State ever had was in a room on the third floor of the capitol. In 1865 the exhibits therein were moved into a leased building or rather a floor of a building. The collection was very poor and small, and so remained until 1877, though meantime the state made a trifling exhibit at the Vienna exposition. It was in charge of the late W. C. Kerr, state geologist. In 1877, with the incoming of Governor Vance, the legislature enacted a law creating the agricultural department, and giving it, as its means of maintenance, a license tax on commercial fertilizers, $500 a year on each brand sold in the state. L. L. Polk, who afterwards became the president of the National Farmers' Alliance and also the founder of the populist party in North Carolina, was the first commissioner of agriculture. The second floor of a building was rented, and in this were the officers and the museum. In this first really practical museum exhibits from the various counties were shown, each county having a space or section, and agricultural products were featured. In 188 a hotel and spacious grounds on the north side of the capitol square were purchased with funds of the agricultural department and so remodeled as to make it an excellent beginning for a state museum. This, ever since known as the agricultural building, contains the offices of that department, the offices of the laboratories of the state chemist, and the fertilizer control, the museum the office of the commissioner of immigration, a hall for lectures, etc.

At first all the exhibts were in one large hall. Then the expansion began. Two halls, then two others, and still later six others were added, until now there is 60,000 feet of floor space, and the building is thrice as large as it was at the beginning. The purchase of the building was brought about by the efforts and great influence of Governor Thomas J. Jarvis. It is but telling the truth to say that the state would have never had this invaluable museum if payment for it had to be madef rom the general funds; but the department paid out of its own funds derived from the fertilizer tax.

There was a suit to prevent the collection of the $500 license tax. A sharp lawyer made the point that the lay required the tax to be applied only to the regulation of fertilizers, etc. He wrote to perhaps all the fertilizer manufacturers, urging them to let him sue for them. Some replied favorably. He got an order from a federal judge restraining the collection of the $500 a year unless the money was applied to one purpose. Then the legislature abolished the $500 license tax and imposed a tonnage tax of 25 cents, which, is 1899, it cut down to 20 cents.

The agricultural department last year expended $18,000 on an addition to the museum, and there is now room enough for some years to come. The furniture, cases, etc., are of North Carolina manufacture, all being of native oak, quarter sawed and polished. The ceilings are lofty and are of North Carolina pine, varnished. Everything is handsome and on a large scale, with arrangements for enlargement.

In one room are photographs in upright revolving cases, ilustrating the state, while in several other rooms transparent photographs of great size are placed in the windows, some being colored, and many of them being the work of the noted Hillyer.

In another room are prehistoric Indian remains, with specimens of the best work now done by the eastern band of Cherokees, who number 3,00 in this state, and also a collection of old and new arms, implements of the hunt, etc., together with the eggs of the birds of the state.

The grains and grasses fill another room and are shown in a very practical way. Each sample is in a glass front case, and on this is a label showing name, when planted, how much to acre, average temperature during growth, time of harvesting, yield per acre, name of grower and location.

In a fourth hall are the friuts—grapes, etc.—in large, specially designed jars, in which is preservative fluid; also the minor woods of the state, the medicinal herbs, prepared with special care; the boring from artesian wells, showing soil and other formations, one specimen for each ten feet of depth; the phosphates of the state, etc., together with a very full botanical collection.

The fifth hall contains gems and gem stones and the rarer minerals, among them the hiddenite, the gems being cut and uncut; the gold and silver ores, etc., notable among the specimens of gold being nuggets of large size.

The building stones are a feautre of the sixth room. Marbles, granites, sandstones, leopardite, etc., all shown in great beauty and variety. There are also in this spacious room mica, kaolin, iron and copper ores, tin ore, corundum, many minerals, monazite, whence comes thoria, out of which the Welsbach burners are made, etc.

In the sixth hall are the woods, that is the large specimens. These are shown strikingly. In specially designed frames are photographs, 2x2½ feet in size, one showing a tree as it stands amidst other trees in the forest; the other showing it alone, very near, so as to illustrate the structure of its bark, etc., and below these photographs is a slab of the particular tree thus illustrated, half polished, half unpolished. The notable collection of wood is now in process of enlargement and at the Charleston exposition will be an an object lesson to the other southern states, no doubt.

The birds, fishes, and animals of the state fill the seventh hall, and form a marked feauture of the entire great exhibit. Particular display is naturally made of game birds and of food fishes. The taxidermy is cleverly done, all being the work of Mr. Herbert Brimley, the curator of the museum.

There are more than 100,000 objects in the museum. They so completely illustrate the state and its resources that persons come here and make a study of the museum, then go to a particularly locality to see the particular thing desired. The labels show precisely the facts as to the exhibits, locality, etc. The details are simply infinite. Mineralogists find the museum a delight. Experts have arranged everything and arranged it well, as beseems the finest and most extensive museum south of Washington.

$1,950 for Preserving a Leg.

Concord, N. H., June 7.—In the Superior court today, A. Perley Fitch, a druggist, secured a verdict of $1,000 for preserving in alcohol for ten years, the amputated leg of the late John H. Pearson, a wealthy resident of this city. In 1887 Mr. Pearson was attacked with a disease which caused the amputation of his right leg just below the knee. He turned the leg over to Druggist Fitch with instructions to preserve it in alcohol.

Mr. Fitch followed out the request and for ten years the leg has rested in a glass jar in the back office of the store. Shortly after Mr. Pearson's death in 1899, the leg was buried in the same grave as its owner and the druggist sent in a bill of $3,450 to the executors of the estate. The executors refused to pay the bill, with the result that Mr. Fitch brought suit and got damages.
